Mysterious Metro 1: Akuji Strikes

Joe and his friends were going for a run in the desert, but he was seeing random things... like bits of random green in the red desert. But it wasn't just Joe, Jeremy (13 years old) and Goliath (11 years old) also noticed it. They quickly ran home...

Joe was a very smart fourteen year old who had got a 'High Distinction' in ICAS. He was a very brave person who loves to learn new things.

Jeremy has brown hair, and is a compassionate thirteen year old. He loves to play video games and ride his bike.

Goliath was the smartest person in his primary school. He had brown hair like the rest of them.

When they turned on the TV all the channels were filled with headlines about random green. They quickly realised that everyone saw it, but just in the city metro. Then it started to really fog up. Everything outside was invisible... except for the one building. It mysteriously had a random head on it. Then Goliath noticed random letters appear, they first saw an A on the couch. Joe touched it and it moved to the kitchen bench. They quickly found the rest of the letters and it spelled out a very sinister name...

“AKUJI” everyone screamed anxiously.
“We knew something was up with this,” Jeremy said, “What can we do now?”
“I have no idea, maybe go and see him?” Joe asked.
“You guys can go, I’ll stay home and play Spider-Man”
Goliath says, “JOE! That must be Akuji, the purple headed ghost.”
They then hear a voice. It was counting down from ten. “10, 9, 8, 7, 6, 5, 4, 3, 2, 1!”
But nothing ever happened...
Except the power going out...
As they magically got teleported to the game store (with twenty dollars) they were wondering if it was Akuji.
“Is Akuji... helping us?” Goliath questioned.

“Hello, where are the PlayStation games?” Joe asked.
“Just over in that corner,” Neil (the worker) said calmly.

As Joe spotted Fifa, Goliath spotted Star Wars.
“Let's get both because they total up to nineteen dollars (eleven for Fifa and eight dollars for Star Wars),” Jeremy exclaimed. “Then we get a dollar change.”

They walk out, go home and sleep.

Once they woke up, they were eager to play Fifa, so they booted it up right away.
“Wow, this is amazing, we can even pick Croatia, our favourite country, but let's do South Korea,” Joe said.

“What about Jamaica, it’s the only country that has a flag without red, white or blue,” Jeremy and Goliath asked.
“Alright,” replies Joe, “Jamaica it is!”

After 3 minutes, they got ahead (2-0) and then scored another goal just before half-time. Their final score was a winning 5-2.

Once they had their delicious wafers for a snack they turned on the next game, Star Wars. As you might’ve expected, they were very stoaked.
“This is crazy, how long did this take them to make? This must’ve taken years!” Jeremy exclaimed.
“Wow, I wasn’t expecting this!” Goliath said while stunned.
Joe exclaimed, “I thought Fifa was the best but I think this might beat it.”
For the hour (and a half) that they got to play before amazing pizza, they were enjoying it. However, in the break Akuji disappeared... and he didn’t seem to come back.
